Power or the People Shall Rule Prizes and Diplomas. The fourth annual commencement exercises of the University College of Medicine were held in the Academy of Music last night under peculiarly happy circumstances. The theatre was crowded with a large and fashionable audience, which included a fair proportion of the gentler sex, and no efforts had been pared to enhance the picturesqueness of the scene by wealth of floral and other decorations.

Upon the stage, which was banked with palms, sat the members of the faculty and adjunct faculty, the prizemen and graduates of the college, with a few visitors, chiefly members of the Alumni Association.

The audience, in which were noticed many distinguished medical and other professional men, appeared to follow the interesting proceedings with keen appreciation. Professor Stein's orchestra played a great variety of pleasing interludes during the proceedings. OPENED WITH PRAYER. It was nearly 9 o'clock when the cur-

The president then conferred pharmacal degrees upon Messrs, A. T. Gray, W. H. Gwinn, W. L. Lyle, B. S. Preston, and H. H. Robinson.

Dr. Thomas J. Moore, in a brief, but happy speech, prefacing the announcement of the hostital appointments, took occasion to state that since the organization of the institution, the appointments had invariably proved most successful. The announcements, which were received with enthusiastic applause, were as follows: City Almshouse, M. E. Nuckols; St. Luke's, Drs. J. C. Bodow and W. Lowides Peple; Virginia Hosnital, Drs. H. G. Nicholson and C. L. Moore; Retreat for the Sick, Dr. James B. Winfield; Richmond Eye, Ear, and Throat Infirmary, Dr. I. N. May.

THE PRIZES PRESENTED.

Dr. William S. Gordon, chairman of the medical faculty, then awarded the prizes to the successful competitors in that department. He spoke of the closeness of the competitions, and the difficulty which had been experienced in determining the successful candidate. In some instances only a fraction had separated the first from the second. As he presented each prize he spoke words of encouragement, as well as words of encouragement, as well as words of congratulation. Dr. Marvin E. Nuckols received the gold medal, given by the faculty for the highest average attained in the whole course. The prize for the best essay on the "flieus," presented by the Powers-Taylor Drug Company, was won by Dr. H. G. Nicholson.

A fine case of surgical instruments, presented by Messrs. Bartlett, Garvens & Co., for the highest average in surgery, was awarded to Dr. A. Chambers Ray.

The Dr. J. A. White prize for the best notes on diseases of the eye was won by Dr. C. F. Moore.

Dr. W. Lowndes Peple carried off the case of instruments given by Dr. Hunter McGuire for the best report of one of his citnical lectures delivered in the surgical amphitheatre.

clinical lectures delivered in the surgical amphitheatre.

The Dr. John F. Winn prize, given for the best notes on that doctor's lectures on clinical and operative obstetrics, was awarded to Dr. Guy V. Kirby.

The Valentine Meat-Juice Company's prize for the highest average on materia medica was won by Dr. S. B. Claybrook.

Dr. Stewart McGuire's prize for the best notes on principles of surgery was award-to Dr. B. L. Hildon.

Dr. L. M. Cowardin next delivered the dental prizes. The faculty prize for the highest average on all studies for the whole course was won by W. W. D. Willis. Mr. Ernest M. Hardy received honorable mention.

whole course was won by W. W. W. Willis. Mr. Ernest M. Hardy received honorable mention.

The Cowardin prize for the best essay on diseased pulps was awarded to Mr. H. W. Barksdale, as also was the C. L. Steele prize for the best specimen of bridge work.

The Grant prize for the best gold filling was won by Mr. T. D. Hubbard.

The pharmacal prizes were conferred by Dr. J. Allison Hodges, who prefaced the swards by a humorous speech, in which he spologized for the chairman of the department, who, he said, was prevented by stage fright from conforming to the rules of the college, that the chairman of each department should deliver the prizes to his own students. The prizes were announced as follows:

Faculty's senior prize, highest general average, Mr. B. S. Preston.

Purceil, Ladd & Co.'s senior prize for best practical work. Mr. A. T. Gray.

Faculty senior prize, highest average, Mr. W. A. Keeling.

Purceil, Ladd & Co.'s junior prize for best practical work. Mr. J. H. Webber.

Weginta Pharmacal Company's prize, for lighest average on chemistry, Mr. H. Robinson.

DDRESS OF JUSTICE CLARK.
a orator of the occasion, Hon. Wai-Clark, of Raleigh, N. C., was then duced by Dr. McGuire. He said, in than he will always receive at the hands of a Virginia audience. The growth of this magnificent city is a pride to the whole South, of which for four long and ever-memorable years it was the capital and the centre. Of the many evidences of rapid progress to be seen on all sides, it is not my purpose to speak. It is proper, however, to express gratification, which should be shared by every southerner, that here in our ancient capital, this institution for the education of physicians and surgeons has taken already so high a stand, and that there is no need of soing farther North to secure a medical diploma. Whose value is recognized throughout the Union. When I first saw, the city of Richmond it was under vastly different auspices and amid other surroundings than those that greet us tonight. It was thirty-six years ago. Virginia had cailed for aid, and across her southern border North Carolina poured her troops like an Alpine torrent. At that time I was a lad of 14, a cadet at a military institute. The troops needering such instruction as it was thought we could give. I was, like many others, assigned to duty by the Governor, and entered this State attached to one of the North Carolina regiments.

To-day it is hard to realize that the scene is the same. Lee and Jackson are glorious memories now. Another flag noats from the flag-staff on your Capitol. From your river, "the fleets of from have fled," and where the long lines of infantry stood the green "grave-grass grows, where asleep are the ranks of the dead."

MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED.

MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED.

MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED.

Yet, I must say to you, my young friends, that not in 1851 was there greater unrest in the minds of the masses of your feliow-citizens North and South, East and West than there is at this moment of deep, dreamless apparent peace. The hearts of men are strangely moved within them, for the masses are not satisfied with existing conditions. No one contemplates that the present unrest will culminate, like that of 1861, in armed strife, but all the signs that history has ever given of great impending changes are with us. None are lacking. Conditions will not, cannot remain as they are. He assured of that.

There are men to whom the present status is very comfortable. They denounce any statement that all others are not as fully satisfied as themselves.

The conflict of ideas, the conflict of interests, is more intense and more real at every point of contact than that which Mr. Seward proclaimed an "irrepressible conflict" in 1890. At Cooper Institute Mr. Lincoln truly declared to a startled generation that the Union could not remain half bond and half free. It is equally true now that this government cannot be governed partly by freemen and partly by an oligarchy of wealth. One or the other must be sole masters of the republic.

THE FORCES EVENLY DIVIDED.

In the press, on the hustings, in the close converse of neighbor with neighbor the conflict of ideas is going on. It is becoming more and more intense. The forces are nearly evenly divided, and both sides are looking for reinforcement to the generation that is arriving a manhood, for your weight will decide the issue.

hood, for your weight will decide the issue.

What are these contending forces and what is the true issue? Is it the tariff? That is a party issue, over which either side predicts beneficial results if it wins, and disastrous consequences if it fails—and, alternately, one or the other wins, and with better or worse conditions the country goes on. Is it the silver issue; the financial question? That is neater the mark, yet that question is rather an incident, a symptom, a phase with suggested remedies, and not the disease itself. Nor yet is it the conflict between labor and capital, nor the old, old struggle between States rights and the centralizing tendencies of the Federal Government. The vital question lies deeper than any of these.

THE VITAL QUESTION.

prayer by Rev. Dr. Tudor, who, in the course of an eloquent aspiration, said. "We thank Thee that in thy Gracious Providence, out of the ground which Thou hast cursed on man's account, Thou hast developed the philanthropic industry which has ever characterized the medical profession." In conclusion, he invoked the Divine blessing on "the young men who shall receive their commissions to go out doing good"; he also invoked God's blessing on the hospital, faculty, Board of Managers, and all others connected with the institution.

Br. Hunter McGuire, president of the college, made a brief address, in which he said he was extremely happy to be able to announce that the closing session had been a most prosperous one. He then conferred medical degrees on the following: J. C. Eddow, Jr., E. Bridgeforth, D. S. George A. Riowil, E. G. Frimback, C. T. Carter, H. R. Carter, W. T. Chitwood, H. M. Dejarnette, C. F. congress, then the parchment decementations is a flaunting lie. If gigantic combinations of wealth can elect or control majorities in State Legislatures or in Congress, so as to shape legislation; if they can be potent in the nomination and election of Federal or State officials, then the real governing power vests in money, not in men, and your bonsted republic is but a once beauteous form from which the spirit has already departed.

This is the question of the hour, which should be pondered and understood with a full grasp of its meaning and all the consequences which must flow from the displacement of the centre of gravity in government.

LEGISLATION AND THE MONEY POWER.

If the control of legislation is so highly profitable and important to the money power, it will be an irreparable calamity to the tolling masses to lose it. If the advocates of popular government win, they in turn, still less than the money power, can rest easy in the victory with the organic law remaining as it is. Experience has shown its weakness and its insufficiency. There are many points requiring amendments. It would be tedious, perhaps beyond my power, to point out any except the most obvious. The election of United States senators by State legislatures has been so often a perversion of the popular choice and a concession to corporation influences that the public sentiment to confer upon the people of each State, instead of its Legislature, the election of its Federal senators is confined to no party and to no section. The bill to amend the Constitution in that respect has passed the lower house of Congress more than once, and once, at least, by a unanimous vote. The corporations have so far been able to prevent is passage by the Senate itself. The Federal indiciary, by its mode of appointment, especially lays itself open to the grasp of great monopolies and combinations, whose influence in such matters is asserted to have become almost irresistible of recent years. The life tenure of office, placing the occupants of the Federal bench beyond reach of public complaint, if their trust is abused, and the finality of their power as interpreters of the Constitution and statutes, combine to make it essential to the great monopolies were not the appointments in this branch of the government. There are unquestionably many able and spotiess men on the Federal bench to-day, but it has been asserted, and it must be confessed, that it is rapidly becoming the rule to fill such positions with men whose life work has been that of counsel for great corporations, and whose entire training is calculated to bias them upon all questions upon which corporation interests and pop LEGISLATION AND THE MONEY POWER.

THE TRANSPORTATION QUESTION.

franchisement in the selection of Federal senators and judges.

THE TRANSPORTATION QUESTION.

Then there is the great transportation question. From its economic side, it is of vast importance. By secret rebates, they can build up and destroy at will cities and individual fortunes. The suggested remedy of government ownership of railroads is untried here, and is fraught with propheside evils. The remedy sought to be applied in many States of control by means of railroad commissions has too often resulted in the railroads electing the commissioners, and simply adding the commissioners to their assets.

It should not be lost sight of that in this struggle for the possession of the governing power there is no taint of an agrarian spirit. There is no appreciable element of the American people who are opposition to property, but to its combination in vast masses for political purposes, that it may control legislation and the machinery of government in the interest of the combination, and against the property rights of others. There is no hatred of cornorations as such. They are essential in the service of civilized life—nay indispensable. Nor even against railroad corporations, so far as they keep within the legitimate duties of their creation, but it is when they seek to use their enormous power of wealth and organization for the undue emolument of their owners and by entering the political arena seek to control legislation and public policy that the collision becomes inevitable. To-day one half of 1 per cent. of the people of this country own over one half of its entire wealth, and 9 per cent. of the poople own 75 per cent of its property. This condition tends rapidly to aggravate itself, To-day in Europe 40 per cent. of the house-holders are tenants. In this grand young republic already 70 per cent. of the house-holders are tenants. In this grand young republic already 70 per cent. of the house-holders ar

Those who serve the money power by speech and pen are wont to dub those who entertain sentiments adverse to government by money as Anarchists, Socialistic, and Communists. But be not daunted in this contest by epithets. The very combination of epithets will show that they are words, nothing more. The original conception of government was a policeman with a big stick to prevent or punish be secure. But we have become far more socialistic than that crude beginning. When taxes were laid on the property and persons of all, whether having children or not, and not in proportion to the number of children, in order to educate other people's children, a most tunnistakable stride towards socialism was taken; yet our public schools are now our pride, and justly, too. Socialistic, too, is the levy of public taxes to be used for hospitals for the sick, the poor, the linsane, the blind, and the deaf and dumb. So is the post-office itself, for what connection is there between government in its original function of preserving peace and order and the distribution of intelligence? In like manner municipal ownership of lights, water and street-cars—admirable as it is and admirably as it has operated for the public works socialistic. I would not be misunderstood as opposing any of these measures, because they are socialistic, nor as advocating further steps in that direction. That is not my purpose, but to call to your minds that whether a measure is to be adopted or not should depend upon whether it will serve the public welfare—and it is not to be rejected if the only objection that can be urged is that some one thinks it is socialistic, seeing that so large a part of the public welfare—and it is not to be rejected if the only objection that can be turged is that some one thinks it is socialistic, indeed, we should never forget minded; i A CONTEST OF EPITHETS. better portion of government is alread of like nature. We need to be often reminded; indeed, we should never forge that government exists for the people and not the people for the government.

HIS PERORATION.

Judge Clark closed his speech with a brilliant peroration. He said: "I might have spoken to you of matters connected with your profession, but in doing so I should only have carried coals to Newcastle; I might have talked to you of my own profession, of the beauty gathered here to-night, or of this glorious Commonwealth. I have met you on a common platform. You bear in your hands the life or death of free government."

Judge Clark's address was delivered with frequent outbursts of applause. On resuming his seat he was very heartly congratulated by Dr. Hunter McGuire and other members of the faculty.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Tudor, and the session of 1895-'97 was a thing of the past. HIS PERORATION.

"Heredity as an Etiological Factor in Diseases."

The discussion of the subject was continued by Drs. Stewart McGuire and Landon B. Edwards.

The association then went into the election of officers for the ensuing year, with the following result: Dr. Henry A. Wise, of Williamsburg, was unanimously chosen president; Dr. E. C. McSparron, of Richmond, vice-president; Dr. Hunter McGuire. of Winchester, secretary and treasurer.

Dr. E. S. Hobson, retiring president, and Dr. Frank Hancock responded in happy specches to cordial votes of thanks adopted by the association.

The treasurer's report showed the organization to be in a very satisfactory condition.

A number of matters concerning the welfare of the association were discussed and arranged.

share with the family the sorrow of his death.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. James Nelson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, of which deceased had long been a consistent and zealous member. Dr. Nelson paid a tender tribute to the Christian character of the deceased, whose only regret in facing death was the separation from those whom he loved. Mr. Boggs offered a fervent prayer, in which he commended the bereaved family to God, who promises to be the husband of the widow and the father of the fatherless. Captain Frank W. Cunningham sang with pathos and feeling the deceased's favorite hymn, "Shall We Meet?"

Dr. Wilkins to Speak Here.

Rev. Dr. Frank L. Wilkins, late general secretary of the International Baptist Young People's Union Association, will arrive in Richmond next Monday afternoon, and will address a mass-meeting at the Second church that night. He is en route to Wilmington, N. C., to attend the Southern Baptist Convention, and stops over here by invitation of the local Baptist Young People's Union leaders. The arrangements for Morday night's meeting are in the hands of a competent committee, and there will be special music and other attractive features in addition to the address of Dr. Wilkins.

His Dollars Were Gone.

James Bland, the colored janitor at the University College of Medicine, claims to have sustained the loss of 355 and a gold ring. The money was left in his room, when he went out several days ago, but upon returning almost immediately the possessions were not his. The actions of an assistant janitor have aroused his suspicions, and a detective has been placed upon the trail. The ring was later found in the bedroom of the suspected, and returned to Bland, but the money is still hiding.

MR. SMITH, OF WILMINGTON, AT-TACKED BY A GANG.

Two Weddings in Petersburg-The Alleged "Airship" Seen Near Ettrick-More About the Virginia and Carolina Railroad Sale. PETERSBURG, VA., April 29.-(Special.)-At 9 o'clock to-night, at the residence of the bride's parents, on Hintor street, Miss Maggie Crawford, daughter of Mr. T. J. Harwell, was married to Mr. Hedges Ford, Rev. Dr. J. W. Rosebro officiating. The occasion was very quiet and homelike, only the immediate relatives of the two families being present to witness the ceremony and extend congratulations. The bride is a most charming and attractive young lady and very popular among her large circle of acquaintances. The groom is an estimable young citizen. There was another home marriage at 9 o'clock to-night, occurring at the bride's residence, on Union street, when the stock as yet amounting to near $15,000 worth. Among these Miss Ardenia J. Gentry, daughter of the late James Gentry, was married to Mr.

Clarence D. Miffleton. A BAD CASE OF ASSAULT. A bad case of assault and robbery oc-curred to-day in the suburbs of Poca-hontas, John Smith, of Wilmington, N. C., being the victim. The assailants were three white tramps, whose names are unknown, but who are supposed to be making their way towards Richmond. Smith was badly beaten and cut about the head and face, and robbed of about 33, all the money on his person. He was brought to the station-house this after-noon, where his wounds were dressed. Officer Eanes to-night arrested George Officer Eanes to-night arrested George Adams, a white tramp, as being one of the three men who assaulted and robbed John Smith this evening in Pocahontas. Adams was identified by Smith as being one of his assailants. Adams halls from Atlanta, Ga. He denies the robbery and claims that he only struck Smith in self-defence. He says that the other two men may have gotten the other two men may have gotten the money. When last heard from the two money. When last heard from the two men had taken to the woods just beyond Riddles; three miles north of this city.

"THAT AIR-SHIP." That mysterious "air-ship," about which so much has been said in the papers of late, is reported to have been seen by a number of citizens of Ettrick, and by several persons in this city, on Priday night of last week. It was moving in an easterly direction, and some thought it a small comet, and others took it for a balloon, and did not give it much thought. THE VIRGINIA AND CAROLINA RAILROAD.

Dr. Peter Arlund, who made a propo-sition to the Common Council last night to purchase and build the Virginia and to purchase and build the Virginia and Carolina railroad, in the event Mr. De-Witt Smith, of New York, should fail in his contract, makes the most positive statement that if the opportunity is allowed him, he will raise the money necessary to build the road, will begin the work without delay, and will put up
